THE MAN WHO REMAINED

[Intro — MALE VOCAL, low and whispered]

I called your names into the night…
And watched the dark devour the light.

[Verse 1 — MALE VOCAL, sorrowful]

I still remember your melody,
And little boots that followed me.
I called you back, I begged the skies,
But darkness stared through your dead eyes.

I lost my wife, I lost my son,
And paid in flesh for what I'd done.
My right side broken, scarred by fate,
Too strong to fall, too weak to save.

[Chorus — MALE VOCAL, powerful and anguished]

I AM THE MAN WHO REMAINED!
The broken soul that death betrayed!
One eye to watch, one arm to fight,
One leg to drag me through the night!

Justice fires, it never misses,
Verdict sings through death's abyss!
I carry all that I couldn't save…
A living curse, a walking grave!

[Verse 2 — MALE VOCAL, bitter and restrained]

A hunter's dream lives in my gun,
Her voice still sings when day is done.
Two souls remain inside my hands,
The last small pieces of my past.

Then Mana said he'd leave this world,
One final chance, one future blurred.
He asked me, “Guard my children, please.”
My brother died, and left them to me.

He named his firstborn Azazel,
The name of my lost son…
A piece of love I thought was gone,
A wound that never closed again.

[Bridge — MALE VOCAL, rising anger and grief]

Alphonsine, I knew the price,
I held your secret, paid the silence.
I watched you both walk into night…
And couldn't save the ones I loved.

[Final Chorus — MALE VOCAL, raw and explosive]

I AM THE MAN WHO REMAINED!
With half a body, soul in chains!
I couldn't save my son or wife,
Couldn't keep my brother's light alive!

Justice fires, let heaven hear!

Verdict sings, let death draw near!

If I can't change the past I've made,

I'll keep their children from the grave!

[Outro — MALE VOCAL, quiet and broken]

Azazel… I'll see them through.

I'll guard the dawn I owe to you.

I've buried love. I've buried home.

But they will never stand alone.

I am the man…

Who remained.
